Hi all,

We are pleased to share with you the ANZIBA Newsletter #3, which we hope you will find both informative and useful.

2024 ANZIBA Conference – DC and ECSC Deadline Approaching

The Doctoral Colloquium (DC) will be held on 7 February 2024 and will include sessions involving presentations by doctoral students (who are registered and accepted for the DC), followed by discussions among all participants and academic mentors. The DC is being led by Prof Hussain Rammal (The University of Adelaide) and Dr Grigorij Ljubownikow (University of Auckland).

For the first time, ANZIBA will have an Early Career Scholars Consortium (ECSC). Like the DC, it will be held on 7 February 2024. It is aimed at early career academics (up to eight years after earning a PhD and holding an academic position) who want to learn more about developing a successful and well-balanced academic career. The ECSC is being led by Prof Snejina Michailova (University of Auckland) and Assoc Prof Alfred Presbitero (Deakin University).

The application deadline for both events is 6 November 2023, and you can find all the details to submit here.

If you work at an university in Australia or New Zealand, you can also apply for a travel stipend to attend the DC or ECSC. They are available for both eligible PhD students and Early Career Scholars.

Female Early Career Researcher in IB Mentoring Programme

In September the ANZIBA Female ECRs in IB mentoring programme kicked-off under the leadership of Dr Pavlina Jasovska. The programme includes five mentee-mentor dyads who will work together over the next year. They will also have regular seminars led by academics on topics like finding your golden thread, building a research portfolio, and saying ‘yes’ to work-related requests in a more strategic way.

ANZIBA Research Seminar Series

How can academics at all stages of their career develop mindfulness and how does it contribute to more effective management of the self and career in an increasingly demanding and stressful era?

This was the theme of the 1st seminar of the new ANZIBA seminar series led by Prof Susan Freeman (University of South Australia). Masterfully facilitated by Prof Freeman, Assoc Prof Connie Zheng (co-director of the Centre for Workplace Excellence at the University of South Australia), Dr Asanka Gunasekara (Swinburne University of Technology at the time of the seminar), and Dr Jane Menzies (University of the Sunshine Coast) shared their respective insights and perspectives on mindfulness, emotional intelligence, well-being, thriving as a researcher in a constantly changing environment, and how the four-day workweek relates to academia.
We thank the organiser and the presenters and look forward to the next event in this series.

Call for Expressions of Interest to join the ANZIBA Executive Committee as a PhD Representative

The current ANZIBA Executive Committee was elected at the ANZIBA 2023 annual conference in Melbourne. We have announced its composition in Newsletter #1, and you can also find it on ANZIBA’s website.

The ANZIBA Executive Committee has always had two PhD representatives - one from Australia and one from New Zealand. We would like to continue this practice and so, we now call for Expressions of Interest (EoI) to fill these positions. If you are a PhD student interested in the role, please describe in max 500 words how you would like to shape the role and how you would like to contribute to ANZIBA. EoIs should be sent to Ryan Tang, Vice-President Membership, at: vp_membership@anziba.org.

If you would like to hear more about the role, you are welcome to email the ANZIBA President Prof Snejina Michailova at: president@anziba.org.
